Missy Martinez-Stone

special guest speaker

Missy Martinez-Stone became involved with the prolife movement when she was just 14 after attending the National March for Life. She earned a degree in political science in 2012 with the intent of dedicating her life to ending abortion. Missy joined Students for Life of America in 2013 as the National High School Program Coordinator. She has traveled the country working with young people, training and equipping them to be prolife activists. Missy helped launch ReProtection, an organization created to investigate and shutter abortion facilities that violate state health and medical codes, in 2019, where she began as the Director of Operations and Senior Analyst. She transitioned to CEO in September of 2021. Missy lives in Louisville, Kentucky, with her husband Aaron, and their daughter Marigold.
